2020 Dems call for Kavanaugh impeachment after new report of sexual misconduct

President Trump said the Justice Department should "rescue" him.

REUTERS

U.S. President Donald Trump rejected Democrats' calls for impeaching Supreme Court Justice Brett Kavanaugh on Sunday after a new report that alleged sexual misconduct, encouraging Kavanaugh to sue for libel and suggesting the Justice Department could "rescue" him.

At least three Democratic presidential candidates called for Kavanaugh's impeachment after the New York Times report.

The Times essay, drawn from an upcoming book written by the newspaper's reporters, discussed a previously unreported account of Kavanaugh's behavior as a freshman at Yale University that echoed allegations against him by former classmate Deborah Ramirez.

The new account, from former classmate Max Stier, describes Kavanaugh pushing his private parts into the hand of a female student at a party, according to the Times piece. The report said the classmate notified U.S. senators and the FBI about the incident, but the FBI did not investigate. The FBI did not respond to a request for comment on the report.

"Brett Kavanaugh should start suing people for libel, or the Justice Department should come to his rescue," Trump wrote on Twitter.

It was unclear what action the Republican president was advocating the Justice Department take.

Kavanaugh did not comment to the Times on Stier's allegation. The Supreme Court press officers did not immediately return a request for comment.

Kavanaugh, a conservative appointed by Trump, was confirmed by the U.S. Senate in October after he denied accusations of sexual assault from three women. After acrimonious hearings, the Senate confirmed his appointment to the high court by 50-48 vote, one of the tightest margins ever for a justice.

> "I sat through those hearings. Brett Kavanaugh lied to the U.S. Senate and most importantly to the American people."
> Sen. Kamala Harris, on Twitter

Trump did not mention the Times article but blamed "radical left Democrats" and the "LameStream Media" for going after Kavanaugh. In a series of Twitter posts, he accused Democrats of threatening impeachment to influence Kavanaugh's opinions on court cases.

"They want to scare him into turning Liberal!" he wrote.

Three Democrats running to replace Trump in 2020 called for Kavanaugh's impeachment on Sunday.

"I sat through those hearings. Brett Kavanaugh lied to the U.S. Senate and most importantly to the American people," Sen. Kamala Harris wrote on Twitter. "He must be impeached."

"Confirmation is not exoneration, and these newest revelations are disturbing. Like the man who appointed him, Kavanaugh should be impeached," Sen. Elizabeth Warren said in another Twitter post.

Julian Castro, housing secretary under President Barack Obama, said the new allegation should be investigated.

"What's become clear is that he should be impeached," Castro told MSNBC. "Based on this new information, that's certainly what it appears like — that he lied under oath." REUTERS

2 UAW calls first national strike against GM since 2007

The United Auto Workers (UAW) said on Sunday that its roughly 48,000 hourly workers at General Motors Co. facilities would go on strike as of midnight Sunday after U.S. labor contract talks reached an impasse, the first nationwide strike at GM in 12 years. "We do not take this lightly," Terry Dittes, the UAW vice president in charge of the union's relationship with GM, said at a press conference in downtown Detroit. "This is our last resort." GM said in a statement that its offer to the UAW during talks included more than $7 billion in new investments, 5,400 jobs — a majority of which would be new — pay increases, improved benefits and a contract ratification bonus of $8,000. "We have negotiated in good faith and with a sense of urgency," the automaker said. A strike will very quickly shut down GM's operations across North America and could hurt the broader U.S. economy. 3 Jordan selling Hornets share, will remain majority owner

Michael Jordan is selling a percentage of ownership in the Charlotte Hornets to a pair of New York-based businessmen. The deal is pending NBA approval, but that is expected to occur quickly, the Charlotte Observer reported. Jordan's new partners will be Gabe Plotkin, a founder of Melvin Capital, and Daniel Sundheim, a founder of DI Capital. How much of the team they will buy has not been disclosed, but the Observer called it "a large piece" though Jordan will remain majority owner. "I'm excited to welcome Gabe and Dan as my partners in Hornets Sports & Entertainment," Jordan said in a statement. "While I will continue to run the Charlotte Hornets, make all decisions related to the team and organization, and remain the team's NBA Governor, Gabe and Dan's investment is invaluable as we continue to modernize ... and strive to compete with the best in the NBA." 4 Thieves steal $5M gold toilet from UK's Blenheim Palace

Burglars have stolen a fully-functional 18-carat gold toilet from Britain's Blenheim Palace, where it had been installed as an art exhibit, police said on Saturday. The toilet, valued at more than $5 million, was part of an exhibition of work by Italian conceptual artist Maurizio Cattelan which opened last week at the stately home 60 miles west of London, a major tourist attraction. The toilet, named "America", was previously on display in a cubicle at New York's Guggenheim Museum, where more than 100,000 visitors were able to use it. Thieves with at least two vehicles broke into the palace, the birthplace of World War II leader Winston Churchill, and removed the toilet some time before 5 a.m. local time, Thames Valley Police said. "Due to the toilet being plumbed in to the building, this has caused significant damage and flooding," Det. Inspector Jess Milne added in a public statement. REUTERS

Cuomo issues 'emergency' order to ban flavored e-cigarettes

Governor's executive action will increase enforcement against underage sales.

New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo on Sunday announced a ban on all flavored e-cigarettes besides tobacco and menthol in response to a recent nationwide spate of sometimes deadly lung illnesses that U.S. health officials have linked to vaping.

Cuomo said vaping was dangerous and that he was concerned fruit- and candy-flavored e-cigarettes were leading young people to get hooked on nicotine.

"These are obviously targeted to young people and highly effective at targeting young people," the Democratic governor said at a news conference in Manhattan.

Nearly 400 people around the country have been stricken with a lung illness that is potentially vaping-related, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Six have died.

Investigators are still trying to understand what causes the illnesses. Meanwhile, health officials have warned people against buying vaping products on the street or using marijuana-derived oil. They have said people should avoid inhaling vitamin E acetate, an ingredient found in some vaping products.

In New York, the state's health commissioner, Howard Zucker, will formally ban flavored e-cigarettes besides tobacco and menthol during an emergency meeting of the state's Public Health and Health Planning Council this week, Cuomo said.

Under state law, the council can vote to issue or amend certain regulations affecting public health.

New York would be only the second state in the nation to introduce such a ban. Michigan did so earlier this month. On Wednesday, the Trump administration announced plans to remove all flavored e-cigarettes from store shelves.

Sales of e-cigarettes are banned in New York to people under 18 years old, an age that will rise to 21 in November. Cuomo said he has told state police to increase enforcement against sales to underage people. REUTERS

MTA hires 500 officers to improve 'quality of life'

The MTA is practically doubling its force to double down on fixing subway issues.

BECCA GLASSER-BAKER
Rebecca.Glasser@metro.us

The MTA said it will nearly double its number of transit officers to help improve the quality of life in the subway.

The 500 new officers will be joining a force of 783, according to NBC, and will help with everything from dealing with crime, littering, loitering and fare evasion to assaults on MTA officers and passengers.

MTA Communications Director Tim Minton shared in a statement with Metro, "MTA Police are here to assist in problem areas that the public has made clear demand heightened attention ... homelessness and fare evasion. We work day in and day out in collaboration with the NYPD."

When it comes to next steps, Minton said, "Safety and security of our riders has, and always will be, our No. 1 priority. The subways are experiencing the highest on-time performance in more than six years and every other major key performance indicator shows year-over-year improvement. We are moving forward on multiple fronts to ensure a better environment for our customers."

Minton explained to Metro that the hiring process has begun but new hires will continue to take place in 2020. When it comes to cost, Minton told Metro that "We are costing out the program, which will be incorporated in the annual budget process later this year. Forty-one million dollars from the Manhattan District Attorney's Forfeiture Fund, disbursed to the MTA over four years, 2019 through 2022, will contribute toward the cost of the new officers. Some of the cost of new officers will also be offset by recouping significant funds currently being lost to fare evasion. The new officers will therefore, in effect, partially pay for themselves."

These officers will be spread out throughout all five boroughs.

NY ranks high on deadly-intersection list

New York City has some of the most dangerous intersections in the nation, according to a new study examining intersection-related deaths.

According to a study by Autoinsurance.org, New York is among the top 10 deadliest states for intersection fatalities, with five of the 15 deadliest cities for intersection deaths located in the state. These cities are as follows: Long Island City (5th), Brooklyn (6th), Manhattan (11th), Bensonhurst (12th) and East New York (15th.)

Between 2011 and 2013, Long Island City and Brooklyn flip-flopped as the areas with the deadliest intersections. Currently, the most fatal area for intersection-related deaths is Glendale/Phoenix, Arizona.

But New York is not the only state seeing an uptick in fatalities. The study shows that there has been a 27 percent increase overall in intersection fatalities since 2010.

GETTY IMAGES

According to the survey, which focused on 2010 to 2017, there was an average of 24 intersection death per day, which totaled to 8,752 average intersection deaths per year. The number of deaths from the New York area alone totaled over 700 deaths.

To combat these deaths, Mayor de Blasio introduced Vision Zero in the hopes of eliminating all traffic-related fatalities. Although New York pedestrian deaths decreased in past years, NYPD reports that traffic-related fatalities have increased 21 percent this year. BECCA GLASSER-BAKER

Companies ask judge in US opioid trial to recuse himself

Big Pharma argues Judge Dan Polster was not impartial in the case, improperly pushed to settle.

Major drug wholesalers and retailers facing a massive lawsuit for allegedly fostering the nation's opioid crisis asked the judge hearing the case to recuse himself on Saturday.

The companies argued in a court filing that U.S. District Judge Dan Polster, who is hearing the case in a federal court in Cleveland, Ohio, had made statements in court indicating that he was not impartial in the case and improperly pushed the companies to settle without going to trial.

The companies said that Judge Polster had also made improper public comments about the case, including to reporters.

Opioids were involved in 400,000 overdose deaths from 1999 to 2017, according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

In the filing, the companies noted that plaintiffs had sought $8 billion. Defendants in the case include McKesson Corp., AmerisourceBergen Corp., Walgreen Co. and Walmart Inc.

"Defendants do not bring this motion lightly. Taken as a whole and viewed objectively, the record clearly demonstrates that recusal is necessary," the companies said in a court filing on Saturday.

In particular, the companies said that on Jan. 9, 2018, in the first hearing, Polster said that the country was in the grips of an "opioid crisis," adding "150 Americans are going to die today, just today, while we're meeting."

"(E)veryone shares some of the responsibility, and no one has done enough to abate it," he said, including "the manufacturers, the distributors, the pharmacies, the doctors, the federal government and state government, local governments (and) hospitals.

> "150 Americans are going to die today, just today, while we're meeting."
> Federal Judge Dan A. Polster

"My objective is to do something meaningful to abate this crisis," he said at the hearing, according to the filing.

The request for recusal comes days after Judge Polster approved the substance of a proposal by lawyers representing cities and counties suing drug companies over the U.S. opioid epidemic that would bring every state and municipality in the country into their settlement talks.

The proposal, part of litigation consolidating about 2,000 lawsuits against opioid manufacturers, retailers and others seeking damages for the epidemic, calls for creating a class of up to 3,000 counties and 30,000 cities, towns and villages that could vote on whether to accept any settlement the plaintiffs reach with the defendants.

Any proposed settlement would need to win support of at least 75 percent of class members to be approved. REUTERS

Doctors Urge Knee Pain Sufferers

"Don't Get ANY Surgery Until You SeeThis…"

After Years Of Intense Study, NYC Medical Clinic Finally Reveals It's Best "Treatment Formula" For Helping Knee Arthritis Sufferers... Especially When So Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NEW YORK CITY - If you are even remotely interested in discovering how the latest scientific discoveries can possibly help your knee pain... then this is going is be the most exciting information you ever read.

Here is why: Knee pain can not only be brutal... it's complex. In other words, it's not a simple, easy fix.

But I'm sure you already know that. Or you wouldn't be reading this.

That's the bad news.

Now for some good news...

Over the years, NYC Pain MD has treated countless knee pain sufferers. And in that time have been able to constantly improve.

And we have come up with a treatment formula that we have found works best and helps the most patients.

This formula has reduced or even eliminated the pain in many. Some were scheduled for knee replacement surgery and felt good enough to cancel their surgery.

It's amazing when patients who were once in excruciating pain... start feeling better. And start walking again. And playing golf. Or tennis. And finally getting their lives back.

Especially when they had gone to other doctors and tried so many other things.

So many had given up hope.

Sound familiar? If it does... check this out...

The Treatment Formula

While I can't give you the entire treatment formula here (there is not enough space and WAY too complicated) I can give you the basics. And more important... I can tell you what it might be able to do for YOU.

The first and most important part of the formula is: PATIENT SELECTION.

This means, NYC Pain MD has a detailed screening process to tell who is most likely to be helped by their treatments... and who is not.

If you qualify, you have the opportunity to move forward and experience the worldclass treatments that NYC Pain MD offers.

If you do not, NYC Pain MD will tell you what they think your best options are and help you find the right doctor for you.

NYC Pain MD "Treatment Formula" A protocol of advanced medical treatments that has already helped thousands.

If you qualify, NYC Pain MD offers some of the most advanced medical treatments available today all using the most advanced imaging technology including:

- Viscosupplementation (gel injections)
- Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP)
- Stem Cell Therapy (Lipogems)
- Genicular Knee Block
- And more.

Once again, there is not enough space to go into detail about all these procedures... but here are some things you MUST KNOW....

Viscosupplementation is where a doctor introduces a gel-like medicine directly into the joint space. This helps to lubricate the joints often relieving some, most or even all of your pain. Results can last for 6 months to several years.

Many have had these treatments without good results. However, NYC Pain MD feels this is because doctors often do these "gel injections" without advanced imaging to guide them. Research shows they will often miss the joint. If the joint is missed... it is impossible for the treatment to work.

NYC Pain MD has spared no expense and used advanced imaging to guide the injections assuring the medicine gets into the joint. We frequently get results when this treatment was a failure done elsewhere.

The second thing you must know is... our treatment plans are custom made for every patent. And we have all these treatments offered in the same place. Many times you will get the best results from multiple treatments. At NYC Pain MD your doctors will all be there and will all know each other and you and your case. They work together and give you the best treatments and care without you having to go anywhere else.

The ability to select the right patients and then have the potential to give them any or all of these treatments... with all the necessary medical technology... under one roof... has allowed NYC Pain MD to get better results than they thought possible.

Here's What You Should Do Next

If you suffer with knee pain... and any of this made sense to you... NYC Pain MD would like to offer you a No-cost screening. That screening is the first step in our "Treatment Formula."

You will get to see a doctor and ask any questions you have. Your doctor will take the first steps to see if you qualify for treatments and give you recommendations.

The best thing is... you will finally get direction. You will know what's going on and what is your best course of action… step-by-step. The treatments will be explained in detail and you will breathe a big sigh of relief finally knowing what's going on and what can or cannot be done.

There is so much we want to say to help you... but I'm out of space. Give us a call at 877-296-6310 and take the first step. That step is free without obligation.

Box office: 'Hustlers' racks up solid $33 million debut, 'Goldfinch' bombs

"IT: Chapter Two" No. 1 for second weekend in a row.

Jennifer Lopez. GETTY IMAGES

"Hustlers" rolled in the Benjamins this weekend, collecting $33.2 million when it debuted in 3,250 North American theaters.

Boosted by rave reviews and stellar word of mouth, "Hustlers" beat expectations and now ranks as the best start for an STX film, along with the biggest live-action opening weekend for stars Jennifer Lopez and Constance Wu. Directed by Lorene Scafaria, "Hustlers" is based on Jessica Pressler's 2015 New York magazine article about a group of strippers who turn the tables on their wealthy Wall Street clientele after the 2008 recession hits.

Not all newcomers were as fortunate. Warner Bros.' "The Goldfinch," adapted from Donna Tartt's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel, misfired with a disastrous $2.6 million from 2,542 locations. Those ticket sales are well behind projections that estimated an opening weekend near $12 million. The mystery drama, which cost $40 million to produce, stars Ansel Elgort stars as Theo, a young man who turns to art forgery after losing his mother in a freak tragedy. "The Goldfinch" was skewered by critics after it premiered at the Toronto Film Festival.

Despite a sour start for "The Goldfinch," Warner Bros. still dominated box office charts. For the second weekend in a row, "IT: Chapter Two" was the No. 1 movie in North America. The scary sequel pocketed another $40 million this weekend, boosting its domestic tally to $153 million. Between "IT: Chapter Two" and its predecessor, the franchised based on Stephen King's horror novel has generated over $1 billion worldwide.

Lionsgate's "Angel Has Fallen" slid to third place, adding $4.4 million in its fourth weekend of release. At No. 4, Universal's comedy "Good Boys" picked up $4.2 million, taking its bounty to a solid $73 million in North America. Rounding out the top five is Disney's "The Lion King" with $3.5 million. After nine weeks in theaters, the remake has amassed a mighty $534 million at the domestic box office. REUTERS

Actress Felicity Huffman gets 14-day sentence in US college admissions scandal

Actress Felicity Huffman, the first parent sentenced in a wide-ranging U.S. college admissions cheating scandal, was given a 14-day prison term on Friday and made a somber apology in federal court for paying to rig her daughter's entrance exam.

U.S. District Judge Indira Talwani also ordered Huffman, the former star of TV series "Desperate Housewives" and one-time Academy Award nominee, to pay a $30,000 fine, undergo a year of supervised release and complete 250 hours of community service. Huffman, 56, pleaded guilty in May.

Actress Felicity Huffman and husband William H. Macy. REUTERS

"My first apology is to you," Huffman, wearing a black dress, told the judge before being sentenced.

"I realize now as a mother that love and truth must go hand in hand," the actress said. "I will deserve whatever punishment you give me."

Huffman was ordered to report to prison on Oct. 25.

Huffman was among 51 people charged in a vast scheme in which wealthy parents were accused of conspiring to use bribery and other forms of fraud to secure for their children admission to prominent U.S. universities. REUTERS

Can This Medical Technology Possibly Eliminate Or Greatly Reduce Even The Most Severe Back Pain... Almost Instantly?

The Advanced Medical Treatment Every Back & Neck Pain Sufferer Needs To Know - No Matter How Bad The Pain Is Or How Many Other Treatments Have Failed

NYC Pain MD is a medical clinic with two locations in New York City that has made a name for itself by treating the worst cases of back or neck pain.

Here is what every back and neck pain sufferer who has failed to respond to other treatments and does not want surgery should know about one of the best treatment options available today for severe back and neck pain including when, why and where you should consider this treatment to get maximum results.

If you suffer with back, neck or nerve pain, you have probably already tried many treatments... especially countless pain medications.

Experienced doctors understand that even though pain medications such as anti-inflammatory pain pills are part of the recommended early treatment plan for back pain... they are rarely the answer.

In most cases they have minimal, short term results (if any) and have a laundry list of potential side effects. Some being serious and even life threatening.

Are there any better options?

Thankfully, advancements in science and technology come extremely fast. And now there is very good option to help relieve the pain.

An option that a lot of back and neck pain sufferers may have never heard of before.

Before we get into these treatments, please understand this...

NYC Pain MD is a REAL medical clinic that has treated the worst cases of back pain. Patients travel from all over to be treated at one of their clinics for all sorts of joint and muscle pain because they want the best medical treatments available.

What you are about to discover is a REAL medical treatment. Not some miracle cure you see on infomercials or on the internet.

Know this fact: There is no one treatment that will help every case of back pain. And we cannot guarantee this treatment will work for you. But this treatment has already helped countless back and neck pain sufferers who had given up hope. I bet many just like you.

What is this treatment? It's called...

Radiofrequency Neurotomy

"Radiofrequncy Neurotomy" is often referred to as RF for short.

RF is a procedure that is based on the theory that blocking the nerve supply to the painful area may alleviate pain and restore function.

There are many nerves around your spine and one of their jobs is to sense PAIN.

Radiofrequency waves are delivered to these nerves under advanced imaging to "block" the nerves.

Two procedures are performed. First, a test, diagnostic "Block" procedure is done to determine if the procedure is going to decrease pain and improve function.

If this first "test" procedure is successful, the Radio Frequency Neurotomy is scheduled and performed for longer term relief.

What Results Can You Expect?

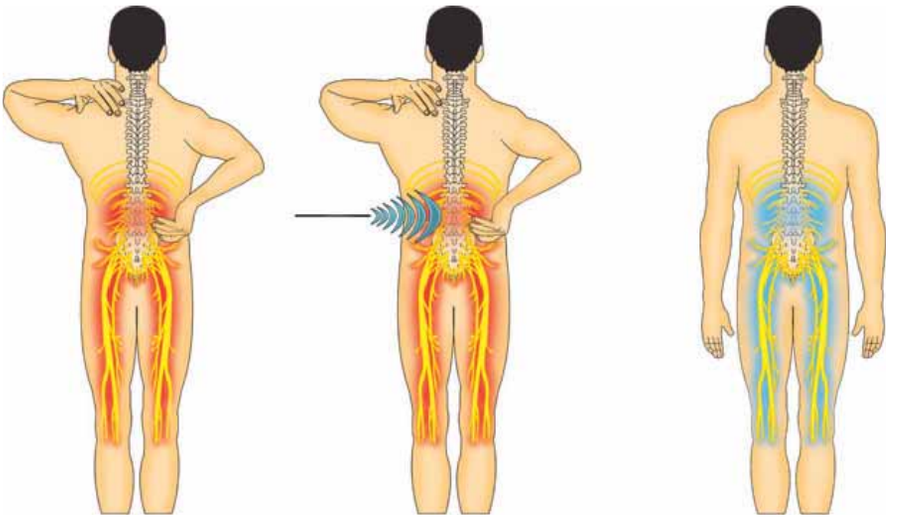
Like all real medical procedures... results vary for individual patients. No good and ethical doctor would guarantee any exact results for any procedure... that's just not how things work and it would be less than honest.

That's being said, it is not uncommon for patients to get complete, if not significant relief of their pain shortly after the treatment.

How Long Do The Results Last?

This procedure "blocks" the nerves pain signals... it does not destroy them. Therefore, the results are safe but not completely permanent. But, many patients get relief for 6 months… 12 months…. 18 months for some and some even longer. The great news is - another procedure can be safely preformed for more relief if necessary.

Advanced Treatment Uses Radio Frequencies To Relieve Serious Neck & Back Pain



Science rescues back & neck pain sufferers?: Radio Frequency Waves are used to block the nerve supply to the painful area and may alleviate pain and restore function to many.

While we cannot claim this is a complete "permanent cure" but... it can be a god-send for so many who were in constant pain.

Really... what would it be worth it to you could get out of pain for long enough so you could start enjoying your everyday life again?

Would it be worth it to be able to finally get a good nights sleep again?

How about being able to go for a simple walk or just do your basic daily chores without worrying about so much pain?

Is It Safe?

Yes. This procedure has been done countless times and continues to have an excellent safety record. It is minimally invasive and is not surgical.

Who Should Try This Treatment?

RF should be considered after other treatments, such as anti-inflammatory pain medication and physical therapy do not offer good enough results.

RF has also been found effective AFTER back surgery when patient's still feel pain.

The pain after a failed back surgery can be debilitating for some and this procedure may be the only thing that helps give you relief.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain And The "X" Factor

Here is the "X" factor many do not consider that might be the difference between you getting the best possible treatment or not.

Many experts suggest choosing a medical clinic that offers all these treatments and has the proper, most advanced technology all under one roof without the need for a surgical center or hospital.

Major Savings In Time And Costs Of Care?

NYC Pain MD's method allows you to avoid expensive hospital or out patient surgi-center facility fees which often run 3 to 4 times the cost of the procedure itself. And you don't have to go through the huge stress and time consuming process of going all over the city to outside centers. All the NYC Pain MD treatments can be done in out in-office procedure suites saving you stress, time and dollars. NYC Pain MD believes this additional "X" factor is one of the reasons so many back pain sufferers travel from all over to be treated at one of their advanced medical clinics.

Iran dismisses US claim it was behind Saudi oil strikes, says ready for war

Saturday's attacks knocked out 5 percent of global oil supply.

Iran rejected accusations by the United States that it was behind attacks on Saudi oil plants that risk disrupting world energy supplies and warned on Sunday that U.S. bases and aircraft carriers in the region were in range of its missiles.

Yemen's Houthi group claimed responsibility for Saturday's attacks that knocked out more than half of Saudi oil output or more than 5 percent of global supply, but U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said the assault was the work of Iran, a Houthi ally.

The drone strikes on plants in the heartland of Saudi Arabia's oil industry, including the world's biggest petroleum processing facility, were expected to send oil prices up $5-$10 per barrel on Monday as tensions rise in the Middle East.

Iranian foreign ministry spokesman Abbas Mousavi dismissed the U.S. allegation as "pointless." A senior Revolutionary Guards commander warned that the Islamic Republic was ready for "full-fledged" war.

"All American bases and their aircraft carriers in a distance of up to 2,000 kilometers around Iran are within the range of our missiles," the semi-official Tasnim news agency quoted commander Amirali Hajizadeh as saying.

State oil giant Saudi Aramco said the attack cut output by 5.7 million barrels per day.

State oil giant Saudi Aramco said the attack cut output by 5.7 million barrels per day, at a time when Aramco is trying to ready itself for what is expected to be the world's largest share sale.

Aramco gave no timeline for output resumption. A source close to the matter told Reuters the return to full oil capacity could take "weeks, not days."

Another source briefed on the developments said Saudi oil exports would continue to run as normal this week thanks to large storage in the kingdom.

But it remains unclear how long the oil production shutdown will continue, because the damage to the infrastructure "was big" and could not be fixed overnight, the source added.

Traders and analysts said crude may spike to as high as $100 if Riyadh fails to quickly bring back supply.

The kingdom, the world's top oil exporter, ships more than 7 million barrels of oil to global destinations every day.

Riyadh said it would compensate for the loss by drawing on its stocks which stood at 188 million barrels in June, according to official data. The United States said it was also ready to tap emergency oil reserves if needed.

The Saudi bourse closed down 1.1 percent, with banking and petrochemical shares taking the biggest hit. Saudi petrochemical firms announced a significant reduction in feedstock supplies.

"Abqaiq is the nerve center of the Saudi energy system. Even if exports resume in the next 24-48 hours, the image of invulnerability has been altered," Helima Croft, global head of commodity strategy at RBC Capital Markets, told Reuters.

According to U.S. government information, 15 structures at Abqaiq suffered damage on their west-northwest facing sides.

Pompeo said there was no evidence the attack came from Yemen, where a Saudi-led coalition has been battling the Houthis for over four years in a conflict widely seen as a proxy war between Saudi Arabia and Shi'ite Muslim rival Iran.

"Amid all the calls for de-escalation, Iran has now launched an unprecedented attack on the world's energy supply," he said. REUTERS

UK's Johnson, likening himself to Incredible Hulk, vows Oct. 31 Brexit

British Prime Minister Boris Johnson likened himself to the comic-book character The Incredible Hulk in a newspaper interview where he stressed his determination to take Britain out of the European Union on Oct. 31.

The Mail on Sunday newspaper reported that Johnson said he would find a way to circumvent a recent parliament vote ordering him to delay Brexit rather than take Britain out of the E.U. without a transition deal.

"The madder Hulk gets, the stronger Hulk gets," Johnson was quoted as saying. "Hulk always escaped, no matter how tightly bound in he seemed to be — and that is the case for this country. We will come out on October 31."

Britain's Prime Minister Boris Johnson. REUTERS

Britain's parliament has repeatedly rejected the exit deal Johnson's predecessor Theresa May negotiated with the E.U., and this month rejected leaving without a deal — angering many Britons who voted to leave the bloc more than three years ago.

Johnson wants to harness that anger to win a majority in an early national election, but his efforts to call one have so far been thwarted by opposition parties who want to first ensure Britain cannot leave the E.U. without a deal on Oct. 31. REUTERS

Starting a bigger conversation

Netflix's new limited series "Unbelievable" takes a closer look at an unimaginable real-life tragedy.

MOLLY GIVEN
Molly.Given@metro.us

Imagine having a traumatic experience happen in your life, one so horrid that most people who go through the situation never speak of it again. Then imagine being brave enough to come forward, then be doubted, and then pegged a liar. Netflix's latest investigative limited series 'Unbelievable" highlights a real case where that side-step of justice actually happened. The series does delve into the horrible reality of sexual assault and the rationality of believing a victim, but the story also shines a light on the insanely tenacious efforts two detectives go through to bring justice to those who so desperately need it. The series' creator and director, Susannah Grant, was compelled to bring this story to life onscreen the minute she heard it, and after all of the details surrounding this compelling narrative come to light, you will most definitely see why. Grant sat down with Metro to talk about the series, the case and why she believes this story highlights the polarizing highs and lows of the justice system.

What was the driving force for you to create this series?
It was the article that Ken Armstrong and T. Christian Miller wrote and published during publication with ProPublica and The Marshall Project — it was just so arresting. It was such an incredible story and had at its heart three such remarkable people, and I quickly thought [the story] could really benefit from being told in my medium. It just has this tremendous narrative, but underneath, it really shines a light on important issues in our country that not a lot of people were talking about. I wanted people to see sexual assault looked at through the lens of the investigation process itself. Both from the perspective of someone who has been raped and is going through the investigation process and how wrong that process can go, and also from the perspective of two really talented, determined and dedicated detectives, and showing what hard work it takes to bring justice to these people.

How much did you utilize the actual case files and statements from the detectives who worked on the case?
You know, I didn't lean on them that much because there was so much reporting that had already been done. We had access to the book, the article and the research materials, so a lot of our questions were already answered. We did reach out to those who were involved and let them know what we were doing, what our intentions were and we asked them a few small questions about the accuracy of what was out there already. But everyone thought the book was great so we didn't actually talk to them that much. We had a lot of the information that we already needed.

Were the two detectives in the series based on actual people?
They are not real, but they are inspired by actual people and the details of what they went through to apprehend this guy and solve this case. Those details are very close to reality. We tried to stick as close to the facts of that as possible just because they were so determined and I had such respect for the integrity that they brought to their work — it didn't need embellishment. But we did preserve their privacy, we changed their names and we dramatized the personal and inner lives of them, so that may or may not have anything to do with the real-life people.

Susannah Grant.
GETTY IMAGES

You touched a bit on the relationship between Toni Collette and Merritt Wever's character. Why was that an important focus for you with this story?
Any character, in order to be worth watching, has to have real dimension and complexity. You're going to be watching this person for eight hours, so they better be interesting. It was also really important to me that nobody in this show be all good or all bad. It wasn't a show about white hats and black hats — everyone has nuance. People who make the worst mistakes are not horrible people and the people who do the best work are not saints. They're all real people who are as complex as you and I. The hope was to always be compassionate to everyone in the story, even people who made really harmful decisions, just to understand why.

What did you look for when casting the characters?
Toni, I've worked with before, and when she read the script she immediately said she wanted to be involved, and of course, we should be so lucky. So that was an easy one. Merritt just has a tremendous soulfulness that she brings to everything, she's really such a phenomenal actress. Watching the two of them work together was one of the real joys of this job. For the role of Marie, we auditioned a number of talented women but when Kaitlyn Dever came in to audition, she really amazed all of us. I think her performance is just spectacular.

Why do you think it's important and necessary for this story to be told?
When you look at just the statistics of the reporting ... This is just a horrendous crime, and it gets reported somewhere between 5 percent and 20 percent of the time it's perpetrated. And out of those, 5 percent are prosecuted. The numbers are just devastating and it's so clearly justice getting a pass. This was a really incredible story that had just a propulsive nature to it. Aside from the great storytelling, it revealed a lot of truths that I think a lot of people ignore.

Overall, what do you hope audiences will take away after watching "Unbelievable?"
Well, I hope that it starts a bigger conversation about something that we don't talk about enough. I don't try to dictate what that conversation should be, but if it can get people talking and thinking about something that a lot of people are ignoring, that's the goal.

"Unbelievable" is available to stream now on Netflix.

The perfect gray

More and more women are deciding to leave chemicals aside to keep their hair natural — a sign of authenticity, freedom and acceptance. If you want to own this look, follow these recommendations.

JAVIERA GARCÍA VILCHES
letters@metro.us

Cara Delevingne. GETTY

The value of au naturel is back. Taking age on with dignity and letting time pass its effects on our body is part of a trend. While some continue to seek the key to eternal youth, others join a global movement that claims respect for nature.

That is why more and more women prefer to show off their hair as naturally as possible, almost as an act of liberation. So much so that gray hair has become a trend, and that is why some celebrities, such as Ariana Grande, Kim Kardashian and Cara Delevingne, have chosen this color to show off at important events.

The desire that women seek is to forget about this issue, not depend on their hairdresser or dyes that, in the long run, wear down the hair fiber — leaving behind those prejudices that women with gray hair seem older and that not hiding them is synonymous with carelessness.

How many times have we said that a man looks handsome with gray hair? Well, us too.

Although the most common reaction when they appear is to camouflage them, there is also the alternative of letting them grow in. And right now, fashion favors us: Dyeing your hair gray is synonymous with style, avant-garde and character.

If you have been enslaved to beauty salons and hair dyes for years, perhaps it is time for you to rethink if this is necessary. You will save time and your pocket will thank you.

In case you want to rock white or gray hair, you must take some points into consideration. The process can be quite slow, so be patient. While the hair is growing, a mix of shades between the roots and the rest of the hair will happen — a small sacrifice before reaching the perfect target.

FIRST STEP

Ruby Figueroa (@rubyfigueroa), hairdresser and color expert, says that the process to achieve the desired target can last between six months and a year. During this period, there are options for retouching while reaching the final result, such as inversed highlights. "For example, a person who has very gray hair can get some in ash gray, beige or golden blonde, depending on their skin color," she explains. In this way, you can hide the contrast of colors while making the transition. Another alternative offered by the stylist is to apply natural dyes, such as henna or dyes without ammonia, such as Shades EQ.

"I WANT MY GRAYS"

Luz María Perelló is 58 and six years ago she decided to stop dyeing her gray hair to discover how it would look without color.

"I wanted to know and accept myself, something that women at a certain age struggle with, and it has been the most spectacular experience of my life," she says. To make the change, she put herself in the hands of her lifetime hairdresser, asked for an original cut, and since then has completely left behind hair dyes, and so far has not regretted it. She says she feels much better than before and with a face that is more her own. "Women approach me every day on the street and ask me how I did it. They tell me they want to do it, but they don't dare," she adds.

Drew and Jonathan Scott, the wizards of home transformation and decor

Metro chatted with the real estate world's most famous twins.

MONICA GARZÓN
Metro World News

Considered the most famous twins of the small screen, Drew and Jonathan Scott are responsible for bringing "Property Brothers" to life, a reality show where they exploit their decorating skills.

They are known for their ability to find real estate in poor conditions and transform them into luxurious homes. Today these Canadians have several television programs, three books and a radio program, yet they are not tired of working together. Drew and Jonathan have made impressive remodels of all types of properties for their program on the HGTV channel, creating comfortable dream homes.

They are dynamic partners with a good sense of humor, which keeps viewers glued to the television until the end of each episode, in which they always surprise you with the results. It is a secret formula that has worked for more than 13 seasons.

The Scott twins talked with Metro about their work and trends in decoration.

How did you end up in the world of real estate?

Jonathan (J): We were actors when we were younger and we didn't want to be fighting so much. So we decided to invest in the real estate business and read many books to see how we could start.

Do you have a different working style?

Drew (D): We both have a great ability to find something old and turn it into something beautiful and new. I think our style is slightly different. Mine is more modern, preserving rustic elements. While my brother likes something a little more relaxed.

J: I like to get dirty too, so… [laughs]

What is the most important element of your work?

J: I really enjoy being in the demolition process, getting inside the building, seeing what the problems are inside the walls. Drew prefers the design side more; he is more inclined to create beauty for space.

D: I am a problem solver. I like working with spaces to maximize their use.

What makes you different from other designers?

D: There are many wonderful designers in the world. But everyone is different. In our case, we make the place functional and fit for the lifestyle of each person who lives in it. We do not force the style.

J: I think it is important that you love your home. It should make your life easier. Each family has a different problem that must be solved and we try to meet this goal.

Do you think that minimalism is an ephemeral trend?
D: Minimalism is something important in design, because many people do not have the money to pay or buy a large space. So if you have a small place, you don't want to overload it.
J: We don't want that feeling of cold and exclusion when people arrive at a place. That's why we try to reuse as many pieces as we can and only then introduce new things.

What is the best part of working together?
J: The best part of working with Drew is that I know exactly what he is thinking all the time.
D: What am I thinking about now?
J: "I like sandwiches."
D: No, "I like tomatoes."

Tell about your house.
D: It's great, it's renovated and we restored much of its original charm. We love spending time together there, when we have a chance.

What is the most curious thing one could find in your home?
J: A super-hammer and a water slider.
D: I am more into antiques. A 19th-century guitar is my coolest object.

Would you like to work on a celebrity's home?
D: Yes, in fact we have had requests from celebrities to work on their houses, but we have not had time. A surprise show may come. I can't tell you more.

What is your concept of an ideal kitchen?
J: I love cooking. I don't have much time to do it, but I need a big space, with my friends sitting around. So, for me, it's about making everything warmer with interesting textures and colors.
D: I like when kitchen and dining room are visible. I like to have a view on everything from everywhere, because I don't want my family or friends to be isolated.

Former MMA fighter James Wilks on why going vegan is a 'Game Changer'

The athlete's documentary "The Game Changers" hits theaters for one night only tonight.

PAT KING
patrick.king@metro.us

The same old narrative has been set in stone ever since the concept of grilling meat has been around: Eating meat is your best bet for gaining protein and a surefire way to build the muscles needed to compete in any competitive sport. But, what if it was all just some clever marketing in order to move products off of shelves?

Former MMA fighter James Wilks had been a believer of the same old routine. As an athlete, he maintained a high-protein diet eating chicken, turkey and occasionally beef. He even adopted a paleo diet for a time to home in on getting as much protein in his system in order to maintain his muscle mass. But then something peculiar happened. After suffering an injury in 2011 while training for a fight, he decided to do some research into the food he had been ingesting. He began to understand that switching to a plant-based diet would provide a more direct source of protein without the inflammatory properties found in meat that can slow down your recovery. From there, he began to find out more, which resulted in Wilks being the subject of a brand-new feature-length documentary, "The Game Changers," directed by Academy Award-winning director Louie Psihoyos.

"I got injured training for a fight and I decided to do some research. As I did this research, I really felt like I'd been fooled or lied to," says Wilks about the start of his journey. "My parents had given me misinformation, not maliciously, but they had told me for years that I needed to eat meat and animal protein to be strong. Of course, the industry's marketing to everybody, saying that we need meat to be strong and we need milk for our bones; the opposite is true, actually. The countries with the highest dairy consumption have the highest rate of fractures. So I felt like I had been lied to. I woke up, literally, at 2 in the morning just out of nowhere and thought I should make a documentary about this and tell everybody. I hate being lied to. I just thought I'd tell the world what I found."

The film follows Wilks as he meets with famous professional athletes who have adopted a vegan diet including five-time Formula One champion Lewis Hamilton, world record-holding strongman Patrik Baboumian, and even famed muscular man and politician Arnold Schwarzenegger. Wilks also puts athletes from both the Miami Dolphins and the Tennessee Titans to the test with adapting a new diet to eye-opening results about the misconceptions tied to not eating meat and competing at such a high level.

"I think the primary [misconception] is that you need meat and animal products for protein. When we know now that all protein originates in plants and animals are only the middlemen," explains Wilks. "Animals are really doing people a disservice. They're robbing the food of the fiber and phytonutrients. They're concentrating intensified and heavy metals and they're adding an inflammatory component that isn't good for performance. Whether it's athletic performance, sexual performance ... In the long term, that inflammation actually helps cause many of the leading diseases: heart disease, cancer and diabetes."

The film also delves into the other reasons why we should consider cutting down our meat consumption, but Wilks feels that people do not need to take drastic steps that they may not be comfortable with. He just wants to present the facts for the rest of us to process in our own ways.

"There are many motivations for people switching to a plant-based diet, whether it's performance, health, animals or the environment. I think something in there is going to resonate with everybody no matter how old you are, no matter your demographic or income level. There are so many reasons for switching to a more plant-based diet. We're not trying to say 'go vegan' or 'go vegetarian,' necessarily. The film is trying to show some facts and dispel some myths, which will hopefully create a shift toward more plant-based eating."

You can catch the one-night-only premiere of "The Game Changers" tonight in select theaters.

Giants flat again, fall to Bills

Big Blue is 0-2 for the sixth time in seven years.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

After defeating the Jets at MetLife Stadium in Week 1, the Buffalo Bills took care of the Giants during their home opener, completing a two-week sweep at the Meadowlands with a 28-14 victory on Sunday.

It's the second straight loss for the Giants, whose offense was ineffective outside of running back Saquon Barkley, who eclipsed the 100-yard mark yet again.

Regardless of his effectiveness, Giants head coach Pat Shurmur has yet to get the memo that he isn't giving the ball to Barkley enough.

After getting just 11 carries (and still managing 120 yards) in Week 1 against the Cowboys, Barkley had just 18 rushes against Buffalo for a total of 107 yards.

For the second straight week, the opening drive provided a world of promise for both the Giants and Barkley, who gained 55 yards on just four carries, including a 27-yard touchdown run.

He had just five more carries for the rest of the half as Shurmur tried to work Eli Manning and the passing game into the fold.

It didn't work.

Manning started the game 1-of-7 — his first completion coming two minutes into the second quarter — to halt any early momentum gained by the Giants.

While they sputtered, the Bills took advantage of the Giants' struggling secondary, scoring 21 straight points in the first half.

The Giants had golden opportunities to nab points late in the second quarter. However, Aldrick Rosas missed a 48-yard field goal before Eli Manning was picked off deep in Bills territory following a 60-yard punt return from TJ Jones.

Bills quarterback Josh Allen looked plenty more comfortable against the Giants defense compared to Week 1 against an active Jets unit.

After committing four turnovers and garnering a 71.2 QB rating, Allen used the Giants defense to get back on track. Last year's No. 7 pick completed 19-of-30 passes for 253 yards and two total touchdowns (one passing).

Manning and the Giants' aerial game — which was without No. 1 receiver Sterling Shepard — showed flashes of competence, but it still wasn't nearly enough as pressure to start Daniel Jones will continue mounting. The veteran quarterback completed 24 of his final 37 passes to get to a total of 250 yards on the day with two interceptions.

He orchestrated his best drive at the end of the third quarter, which stretched into the fourth, going 12 plays and 76 yards to make it a 21-14 game with 11:56 remaining. Manning hit Jones with a four-yard pass in the back of the end zone.

The Bills would quickly answer, however, going 75 yards on 13 plays, which was extended when Dexter Lawrence was called for unnecessarily roughing the Bills' center on a field-goal attempt with 6:47 to go.

Instead of it being a 10-point game, the Bills took advantage of the penalty and iced the game when Frank Gore rumbled in from a yard out.

Jets host Browns in pivotal Monday night clash

It might only be Week 2, but Monday night is proving to be a must-win game for the New York Jets (0-1) as they face the Cleveland Browns (0-1) with a daunting schedule ahead.

Here are two things to watch:

TREVOR'S TIME

The Jets were dealt quite the blow last week when they lost starting quarterback Sam Darnold for anywhere between three and seven weeks after he contracted mono.

Stepping in under center will be Trevor Siemian, who signed with the Jets back in March after a season backing up Kirk Cousins in Minnesota with the Vikings.

The 27-year-old hasn't appeared in a regular-season game since 2017, when he was the Denver Broncos' starting man under center.

From 2016-2017, Siemian started 24 of 32 games for a franchise that struck out on finding a franchise quarterback in Paxton Lynch or Brock Osweiler.

The numbers aren't all too impressive. He went 13-11 with a 59.3 percent completion rating for 5,686 yards, 30 touchdowns and 24 interceptions.

Jets head coach Adam Gase, however, has liked what he's seen from Siemian.

"Being with him since we started in the spring, the way he's practiced, the way he's prepared, the way he is, nothing really bothers him," Gase said. "He's got a good way about him."

Expect Siemian to be more of a game manager than a playmaker, relying heavily on running back Le'Veon Bell.

In terms of his game plan, he could take a page right out of Darnold's book from Week 1. Throwing quick slants to slot receiver Jamison Crowder — who hauled in 14 receptions for 99 yards against the Bills — are low-risk throws that could keep the offense's pace up.

OBJ vs. GREGG

Browns wide receiver Odell Beckham Jr. is making his first return to MetLife Stadium since being traded from the Giants over the winter — albeit, he's playing the Jets.

Regardless, there's plenty of fuel to fire the star pass-catcher as he accused Jets defensive coordinator Gregg Williams of directing his players to injure the former Giants back in 2017 during a preseason game.

Williams was the defensive coordinator of the Browns at the time when defensive back Briean Boddy-Calhoun cut the legs out from under Beckham, who suffered an ankle injury on the play that held him out of Week 1.

"It's preseason. It's like a known rule. Like in preseason, nobody in the NFL is really out to do stuff like that," Beckham said. "I had players on this team telling me that that's what he was telling them to do — 'take me out of the game' — and it's preseason. So, you just know who he is. Just that's the man ... calling the plays."

Williams wasn't too amused with such accusations.

"Odell who? ... That was a joke," he said.

Williams was famously involved in the New Orleans Saints bounty scandal earlier in the decade, where players were paid for injuring opposing players.

Beckham is one of the most explosive receivers in the game and needs no extra motivation to take center stage, especially during prime time.

Ho-Sang a straight shooter at vital camp

The enigmatic winger is running out of chances to stick with the Islanders.

JOE PANTORNO
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Josh Ho-Sang appeared in just 10 games last year with the Islanders. GETTY IMAGES

Josh Ho-Sang, a smile across his face, collected himself for a moment before he spoke.

I had just asked him if he could be an x-factor this year for an Islanders team that was four wins away from making the Eastern Conference final last year.

"Yeah," he said. "I was up last year, the team went 9-1, I feel like I can help."

While his long-term fit for the Islanders remains uncertain, the numbers check out. In an abbreviated stint in the NHL last season, the Islanders won nine of 10 games in which Ho-Sang appeared. The 23-year-old recorded two points in those games — a goal and an assist.

The Ho-Sang era in New York has been a puzzling one.

Perceived to be a top-10 talent in the 2014 draft, behavioral issues saw his draft stock drop to the end of the first round, where the Islanders nabbed him.

He's had a short leash and limited stints in the NHL since then, despite a playmaking skillset that could develop toward a star level. Since the start of the 2016-17 season, Ho-Sang has appeared in 53 games, recording seven goals, 17 assists and a minus-4 rating.

The Islanders still decided to re-sign the winger to a one-year contract this summer when he was a restricted free agent, making this training camp an important one for his NHL future.

When speaking with the media at Islanders training camp, however, Ho-Sang portrayed little urgency.

"I'm not really too stressed about it. I'm happy right now," Ho-Sang said. "I get to play hockey for a living. There are worse things."

Ho-Sang will have to wow head coach Barry Trotz and general manager Lou Lamoriello to secure an NHL roster spot this fall, which won't be an easy task. The Islanders have limited space on their wings given their depth along with youngsters Kieffer Bellows and Oliver Wahlstrom waiting in the wings.

"I don't know. I think that's up for me to kind of create and then [for management] to give me the chance," Ho-Sang said. "I think it's both. And I take responsibility for what I can control. They can do whatever they want."

Knee Arthritis Pain?
10 Year Medical Study Reveals Knee Replacement Avoided With Newest Medical Treatment In 3 of 4 Cases

If you suffer with painful knee arthritis – science may have finally found the answer you've been looking for.

Here's why: What should be looked at as a landmark and startling study by the medical world, research published by a noted Orthopedic Surgeon in the Journal Of Knee Surgery revealed that 75% of those with Grade IV (often called "bone on bone") knee arthritis were able to avoid the surgery more than 7 years and beyond.

When doctors accurately placed FDA approved lubricating medicines using advanced imaging into almost 2000 arthritic knees (like putting oil on a rusty door hinge or automobile engine) the majority of patients actually responded well enough to avoid major and complex knee replacement surgery. But, the procedure needs to be done by experienced doctors using the best technology for optimum technique and results.

Know this: This is an FDA-cleared REAL medical treatment that must be given by a skilled professional.

These special treatments are now available right here in NYC for Tri-State area arthritis sufferers. And many insurances, even Medicare, cover these treatments for qualified patients.

More Good News: NYC Pain MD, the NYC area's "go to' medical group for non-surgical arthritis pain management is now offering these simple, in-office treatment programs and offers a No-Cost, No-Obligation screening appointment to find out if you qualify. To speak with a scheduling coordinator about a screening appointment, just call 877-228-5490.
